THE SUMMER LEARNING-SERVING COVENANT is a covenant between the student and the Supervisor / institution. It details the structure of the field education experience in a specific site and time. There is one Summer Learning-Serving Covenant after the first Spring semester. The Supervisor assists the postulant/student in developing the learning objectives and other elements of the Covenant and both take responsibility for its content and indicate approval of it by signing the completed document.*

The Summer Learning-Serving Covenant continued:

A well-elaborated Summer Learning-Serving Covenant will help clarify mutual expectations and guarantee that the evaluations at the end of the summer will be based on concrete and measurable objectives. It is also an exercise in self-reflection, theological thinking and pastoral planning. Changes to the Summer Learning-Serving Covenant may be negotiated when deemed necessary, with the Director of Theological Field Education taking part in that process.

1. Learning Goals: For the Practice of Ministry area, the postulant/student and supervisor decide upon the particular goals hoped for during the time this Summer Learning-Serving Covenant is in effect. Goals should focus on the postulant /student’s growth in leadership and understanding in the area selected, and the particular issues or aspects of the ministry area that are of greatest interest.

What are the Learning Goals?

2. Ministry Work: The postulant/student and mentor decide how each goal is to be reached. This includes the concrete work expected of the postulant/student in the Practice of Ministry area. This work should engage the postulant/student as a leader in, and pastor to, the community being served. Be as specific as possible, including particular responsibilities, concrete expectations and times planned in the Practice of Ministry area.

What is the Ministry Work?

The Summer Learning-Serving Covenant continued:

3. Evaluation: The postulant/student and supervisor agree on how quality, progress, and achievement will be measured in the Practice of Ministry area receiving focus in this Covenant, including the roles of supervisor and others (where applicable). Please be specific.

How will this Ministry be evaluated?

4. Resources: For the Practice of Ministry area selected above, outline the resources that are available for learning and support. These resources come both from the postulant/student and the field education site and may include people, course work and other materials.

What Resources (persons, locations, supplies, activities, other) will be provided for the postulant/student to fulfill the Ministry Work?
